SUMMARY REPORT OF THE EVENT

ADC-2107: CORTICO BASAL IMPLANTOLOGY

Corticobasal implants are Osseo-fixated in cortical bone in contrast to conventional dental implants which are "Osseo-integrated". Their success does not depend on osseointegration. However, osseointegration will occur over the period with all endosseous implant parts. Therefore, the protocols, indications and contraindications of conventional dental Implantology cannot be applied to the treatment with corticobasal implants. It is more logical to adapt the rules of traumatology and orthopedic surgery to the field of corticobasal dental implantology. The present session discusses about the use of corticobasal implants. It also describes different aspects associated with this treatment modality, including the situations in which special care is required or where the implant treatment plan must be adjusted.
