SUMMARY REPORT OF THE EVENT

ADC-2108: MANAGEMENT OF YOUNG PERMANENT TEETH

Management of young permanent teeth involves the diagnosis of pulp health or pathosis and various therapeutic interventions for pulp therapy in both primary and immature permanent teeth. The health status of pulp tissue determines which form of pulp therapy is indicated. There are different treatment options for vital and non-vital deciduous and immature permanent teeth. Clinicians should familiarize themselves with these pulp therapies and consider the value of each tooth in question, restorability of the tooth, and potential alternative treatment. This session deals with updated information and guidance on pulp therapy for primary and immature permanent teeth. Dr. Hemant Kumar.R is currently Reader in the Department of Pediatric and preventive dentistry, SVSIDS. He has completed BDS from KLE Society's Institute of Dental Sciences Belgaum, Karnataka in 2006 and MDS in 2012 from VS Dental College & hospital, Bangalore, Karnataka. He is a member of Indian society of Pedodontics and Preventive Dentistry. He has attended various specialty conferences and presented papers and has reputed publications to his credit. He has been undergraduate examiner for various universities
