SUMMARY REPORT

ADC-2304: GUIDED BIOFILM THERAPY

Dental biofilm is primary etio-pathological factor for periodontal and peri-implant diseases. Over the past decade, various research has been carried out to know the structure of biofilm and the mechanism by which it causes the destruction of supporting tissues of tooth or implant. Periodontal or peri-implant therapy usually begins with primarily removing the biofilm and is considered as non-surgical mechanical debridement. Although scaling and root planning (SRP) is regarded as a gold standard for mechanical plaque debridement, various other means of biofilm removal have constantly been evolving. A new concept has emerged known as “guided biofilm therapy” (GBT). It is beneficial in removing the biofilm around the tooth and implant structures, resulting in better results.
