SUMMARY REPORT

ADC-2003: MANAGEMENT OF GINGIVAL PIGMENTATION

Gingival melanin pigmentation is one of the most common clinical situation. Principles, techniques, and management of this pigmentation is not well documented. Depigmentation procedures such as scalpel surgery, gingivectomy with free gingival autografting, electrosurgery, cryosurgery, chemical agents such as 90% phenol and 95% alcohol, abrasion with diamond bur, Nd: YAG laser, semiconductor diode laser, and CO2 laser have been employed for removal of melanin hyper pigmentation. Understanding the clinical situation and evaluating the recommended treatment requires good knowledge of this topic.
