REPORT OF THE EVENT

25-11-2022

INTRODUCTION:

Cervical cancer is a type of cancer that develops in the cells of the cervix, which is the lower part of the uterus that connects to the vagina. Most cervical cancers are caused by the human papilloma virus (HPV), a common sexually transmitted infection. However, not all HPV infections lead to cervical cancer, as the immune system can often clear the virus before it causes any problems.

OBJECTIVES:

General objective: to reduce the incidence, morbidity, and mortality associated with cervical cancer through education, early detection, prevention, and access to appropriate healthcare services.

Specific objectives:

- Educate individuals about the risk factors, symptoms, and consequences of cervical cancer, as well as the importance of regular screenings and vaccination against human papilloma virus (HPV), which is the primary cause of cervical cancer.
- Promote awareness of the importance of regular cervical cancer screenings, such as Pap tests (Pap smears) and HPV tests, among eligible individuals. Encourage women to seek healthcare services for cervical cancer screening, especially in underserved communities where access to healthcare may be limited.
- Empower individuals to take control of their reproductive health by advocating for themselves and others in accessing cervical cancer screening, vaccination, and treatment services. Provide resources and support to facilitate informed decision-making regarding cervical cancer prevention and management.

REPORT OF THE EVENT

11-02-2019

INTRODUCTION:

Organ donation awareness programs play a crucial role in educating the public about the importance of organ donation, dispelling myths and misconceptions, and encouraging individuals to register as organ donors.

General objective: to have a successful awareness program on organ donation that educates, inspires, and empowers individuals to make informed decisions about becoming organ donors and potentially saving lives through the gift of donation.

Specific objectives:

- To offer opportunities for attendees to register as organ donors onsite or provide information on how to register online through official organ donation registries.
- To determine what you aim to achieve, whether it's increasing the number of registered organ donors, raising awareness about the need for organ donation, or educating the public about the process and benefits of organ donation.
